

ABSTRACT

A system and/or methodology that facilitates verifying and/or validating an APC assisted process via simulation is provided. The system comprises a film stack representation and a canonical model. The canonical model can predict process rates based at least in part upon an exposed material in the film stack representation. A solver component can also be provided to generate an updated recipe set-point according inputs and outputs of the canonical model.